

WOLF THEISS acts as legal advisor to RED NOSES International in Central and Eastern Europe

The international law firm WOLF THEISS has started a new pro bono project in January advising the non-profit organisation RED NOSES Clowndoctors International in legal matters. The scope of advice includes the incorporation of new RED NOSES organisations in Central and Eastern Europe, the formal analysis of already existing organisations and general legal advice under various local laws.

"It is very important for us to ensure that the RED NOSES organisations are founded on a solid legal basis. In order to achieve this, we need professional legal advisors whom we found in WOLF THEISS, a leading law firm in the region. WOLF THEISS provides the legal know-how in the countries where we operate, and thus we are able to focus on our artistic performance at the hospitals," said Monica Culen, general manager and cofounder of RED NOSES Clowndoctors International.

"As a law firm with offices in Central and Eastern Europe it is our wish to also assume a social responsibility role within the region. With RED NOSES Clowndoctors International we have found an ideal partner for a pro bono cooperation in numerous projects in various countries," said Andreas Theiss, senior partner of WOLF THEISS.
